Sweet C-Mart salvation

BY CODY CAMPBELL
Staff Writer

To a passerby, the small gas station on the corner of the street might seem like just another place to fuel up. But to the people at Sterling College, C-Mart is a whole lot more than that. This little shop is a place to fill your car, stomach, and even a place to fill the emptiness that the stress of school can cause.

Sterling, Kansas is a small town. Some students like the slow small town vibe, but there are many students from large cities who aren't quite used to the slow pace of Sterling and the transition can be difficult. In other parts of the country, students can go get food at any time of night, but the only place serving food at all hours in Sterling is C-Mart. At 4 in the morning on a Saturday night, there are few things in life better than a nice, hot pizza. In the after-hours, only C-Mart comes to the rescue.

Sometimes the life of a student can be ridiculously stressful. We have classes all day, then at night we sit and do our homework. This is tough enough as it is without outside things making life harder like family and friend issues. Maybe things just aren't going great with your current love interest. Even just being in your dorm for too long can make you feel like you're going to go crazy sometimes. More often than we would like, the stresses of life can pile up and you just need to get out of your dorm to blow off some steam. Where do we always seem to go to get a drink and some comfort food? Our favorite corner store: C-Mart. Even if it's just to fill ourselves with empty calories, we need this little establishment to get through the tough days at Sterling.

So remember to appreciate C-Mart—because when you are crying into your pillow, or cramming for a test, or just discovered you forgot to turn in that essay that was due yesterday— it is always better surrounded by pizza, Twinkies, and iced tea.

Dancing in Candyland

BY RACHEL PADRO
Co-Editor

Sterling College was a busy campus on the 'day of love,' which resulted in moving the Valentine's Day dance to February 21, in Upper Wilson. This year, the Freshman Activity Board wanted to give the dance a fresh look and theme—so they decided to throw a Candyland Bash. Eventually, this dance evolved from the Valentine's Day into its own unique event.

The Candyland Bash was a huge hit. The evening featured chocolate fondue and couple's games. FAB representative Amanda Hood says, "We wanted entertainment, not just dancing." One such form of entertainment, fun both to partake in and to watch, was the swing dancing competition.

Hood says, "Anyone who wanted was able to participate! The first round, Addie Swihart, '11, McCreery RD, and Nathan Ehresman, '14, Swihart's fiancé, judged the first round to decide who would continue to the finals. Three couples were selected for a dance off, and the crowd selected the winner out of those couples. Of the three couples, the winners were the brother-sister team: freshman, Lindy Smith, and Nick Smith.

Hood says, "We were really appreciative of everyone who came out and supported the bash! It was lots of fun putting it on, and seeing so much of the student body come out to have fun!"

Sterling Track wraps up with KCAC Championships

The Warrior Track and Field team wrapped up the regular season with a solid showing at the 4th Annual KCAC Indoor Track and Field Championships on February 13 and 14 in Ahearn Field House on the campus of Kansas State University. Both men's and women's teams were successful and earned team honors, which were voted on by the KCAC track & field coaches.

The biggest highlight of the day, however, came as both programs were awarded with the inaugural KCAC Team of Character award. The KCAC Team of Character award was based off of the NAIA Champions of Character award and recognizes a school in each sport, as voted on by their peer coaches. The NAIA Champions of Character program was designed to remind athletes, coaches, and fans to act in relation to core values in all aspects of life. The Champions of Character core values are: integrity, respect, responsibility, sportsmanship, and servant leadership.

Both teams earned the Team of Character awards with their volunteer efforts during the fall semester. They spent time in charge of story time on Tuesdays and Fridays at the public library, working with the NAIA Core Values at recess with third graders, working on the Habitat for Humanity House, helping with math and reading in Mrs. Burgess's third grade class, as well as many other things around town and campus.

"We have an amazing group of student-athletes who go above and beyond to serve others before themselves in all that they do. This weekend as a track meet was full of hard work and great memories, and I am excited for what is ahead in outdoor. For us to be awarded with the Team of Character Award shows the heart and soul of this team and that is servant leadership. I am thankful to have the chance to work with each and every member of this team/family on a daily

Langford joins Hamburg Huskies

BY COLLIN SMITH
Staff Writer

It's not every day that a Sterling College Athlete signs a professional contract. Dual-threat quarterback Reggie Langford (Sr.), one of the most successful athletes in Sterling College football history, will be the newest member of the group of individuals representing Sterling College in the professional sports world. Langford has accomplished an incredible amount during his career at Sterling. Langford's long list of accomplishments include a career record of 16-7 while at Sterling, leading the Warriors to the school's first ever conference championship last season with a record of 9-3, and earning second team all-KCAC for both seasons at quarterback for the warriors. This season, Langford threw all over opposing defenses, piling up 1,493 passing yards, as well as 795 on the ground. In his two seasons at Sterling, Langford was named KCAC Offensive Player of the Week three times. Langford was also a leader with a great work ethic, both on and off the field, which is something that can't be taught and is more valuable than the ability to throw a football.

Langford will be taking his talents to Hamburg, Germany, where he will be a member of the Hamburg Huskies. The Huskies are a member of the German Football League and are coming off of an 11-2-1 season and a North Division title, the club's greatest season in the history of Hamburg football. Langford is excited for the chance to continue his career overseas. "What I'm looking forward to most is just my opportunity to play with a group of guys that is so diverse. Some never having played football when they were younger, and some who have been to NFL Training Camps, or on NFL rosters. It's also a great opportunity to get to the next level, and to travel a little bit," said Langford. Langford is keeping his focus on what is really important in all of this. "I just want to go there and be the best possible leader and player that I can be. I don't want to worry too much about expectations, and I'll try to represent my family, friends, and Sterling College as well as I can. It also wouldn't be bad to bring home a German Bowl Championship!" Langford hopes to continue his success on another continent, but will always be supported by the Warriors here in Sterling, Kansas.
